B.E. (Mechanical) –2001 –RIT, Sakharale
 M.Tech.(Aerospace) –2005 –IIT, Bombay

After completing B.E. in 2001, I had to answer a famous question - "What's next?" I was lucky enough to get my foundation strong during my four years, but was not sure about what kind of building I would love to build upon. In search of what's missing, I joined GATE coaching classes in Pune. I got 373 rank and got admission to M.Tech. Aerospace at IIT Bombay. This was the biggest turning point in my life. I had great education and encouraging professors. Most importantly I got best possible friends one could have.

During M.Tech., my friend came with an idea of starting a company. We were too young at that time with no experience of how to run a company, but had a dream to be passionate about. To get industry exposure we joined in industry, I started working with FLUENT India. After 10 months of small experience, we left the job to follow our dream. We started company Centre for Computational Technologies Pvt. Ltd. in May 2006. Every day there was a challenge to manage funds, to learn technical aspects of work. But it was and is fun. We designed six months unique courses on CFD and CAD development. Within very short span, these courses became first choice for engineers who want to make career in this field. We expanded business into CAD software development and CFD consultancy services. Today, the company's main focus is CAD and Engineering Software Development and CFD consultancy. Now we have a team of 30 unique engineer passionate about one common dream "Being best in the field of computational engineering". To know more about our company do visit www.cctech.co.in

In Feb 2012, we launched another brand called LearnCAx. We wanted fundamental and advance education to be available to everyone, whenever and wherever they want. LearnCAx started with various online courses on CFD but now expanding in almost all fields of engineering. Within a short span of one and half years, LearnCAx has registration from 100+ countries and its moving fast towards its ultimate aim of "Being part of every engineer's life". The Two Hospital Patients

Two men, both seriously ill, occupied the same hospital room. One man was allowed to sit up in his bed for an hour each afternoon to help drain the fluid from his lungs. His bed was next to the room's only window. The other man had to spend all his time flat on his back. The men talked for hours on end. They spoke of their wives and families, their homes, their jobs, their involvement in the military service, where they had been on holiday.

And every afternoon when the man in the bed by the window could sit up, he would pass the time by describing to his roommate all the things he could see outside the window. The man in the other bed began to live for those one-hour periods where his world would be broadened and enlivened by all the activity and colour of the world outside.

The window overlooked a park with a lovely lake. Ducks and swans played on the water while children sailed their model boats. Young lovers walked arm in arm amidst flowers of every colour of the rainbow. Grand old trees graced the landscape and a fine view of the city skyline could be seen in the distance.

As the man by the window described all this in exquisite detail, the man on the other side of the room would close his eyes and imagine the picturesque scene.

One warm afternoon the man by the window described a parade passing by. Although the other man couldn't hear the band - he could see it in his mind's eye as the gentleman by the window portrayed it with descriptive words. Days and weeks passed.

One morning, the day nurse arrived to bring water for their baths only to find the lifeless body of the man by the window, who had died peacefully in his sleep. She was saddened and called the hospital attendants to take the body away. As soon as it seemed appropriate, the other man asked if he could be moved next to the window. The nurse was happy to make the switch and, after making sure he was comfortable, she left him alone. Slowly, painfully, he propped himself up on one elbow to take his first look at the world outside. Finally, he would have the joy of seeing it for himself. He strained to slowly turn to look out the window beside the bed.

It faced a blank wall. The man asked the nurse what could have compelled his deceased roommate who had described such wonderful things outside this window. The nurse responded that the man was blind and could not even see the wall. She said, "Perhaps he just wanted to encourage you."
